

Construction Line Blog

Description

- What is PPN 026? What the Social Value Model means for construction

September 9, 2026 by Ali Ryder

Social value has always mattered in public sector procurement, and with PPN 026, it now has a more structured, consistent framework behind it. Buyers across central government are applying a refined Social Value Model that gives social value a scored, weighted place in the evaluation process, making ... The post What is PPN 026? What the Social [...]

- How to find fire door jobs in the UK

September 8, 2026 by Ali Ryder

Looking to find fire door jobs near you? Demand for fire door work across the UK has grown fast, driven by tighter building safety regulations that followed the Building Safety Act. Landlords, contractors and building owners now face far greater scrutiny over the doors that protect their occupants, and ... The post How to find fire door jobs in [...]

- How do our Buyer Success Managers support your construction supply chain management needs?

August 19, 2026 by Ali Ryder

Managing a construction supply chain can feel like a constant juggling act. Scattered data, duplicate paperwork, and disjointed systems eat into time that main contractors simply don't have. Here at Once For All, home to Constructionline, that's where a Buyer Success Manager comes in. We sat down with Dale Goshawk, one of our Buyer Success ... The post How do our Buyer Success Managers support [...]

- Why construction lead quality matters more than lead volume in 2026

August 17, 2026 by Ali Ryder

UK subcontractors often waste time chasing high volumes of outdated or irrelevant construction leads. This is where lead quality matters more than quantity. A high-quality construction lead is timely, accurate, verified, and matched to your trade. Most subcontractors can't afford nor spare the time looking for quality construction leads, often finding ... The post Why construction lead quality matters more than [...]

Date Created

27/03/2025